The 2016 International Student Summit simulated an emergency, multinational summit aimed at promoting stability and finding a peaceful resolution to recent security concerns posed by North Korea's strengthening of its WMD programs. This meeting took place against a backdrop of increased military provocations in the region by the DPRK, including the proliferation of military-related items, long-range missile development and top-secret tests of chemical weapons and nuclear devices.

Representing a country impacted by North Korea's WMD programs and possible export of nuclear materials and missile technology to hostile states and terrorist groups, student delegates were tasked with finding a collective strategy in talks with Pyongyang in hopes of preventing the proliferation of WMDs. The goal of the summit was to find a resolution that would restore peace and stability on the Korean Peninsula and in Northeast Asia.
